

OSHA has established exceptions to work-relatedness. If the employee is the work environment (permanent, temporary, travel status or work from home) and any of the following applies, the case is not recordable.

OSHA's NINE EXCEPTIONS TO WORK-RELATEDNESS

As part of its rulemaking, OSHA established nine exceptions to work-relatedness.

1. At the time of the injury or illness, the employee was present in the work environment as a member of the general public rather than as an employee.
2. The injury or illness involved signs or symptoms that surface at work but result solely from a non-work-related event or exposure that occurs outside the work environment.
3. The injury or illness results solely from voluntary participation in a wellness program or in a medical, fitness, or recreational activity such as blood donation, physical examination, flu shot, exercise class, etc.
4. The injury or illness is solely the result of an employee eating, drinking or preparing food or drink for personal consumption (whether bought on the employer's premises or brought in). For example, if the employee is injured by choking on a sandwich while in the employer's establishment, the case is not work-related. Note: If the employee is made ill by ingesting food contaminated by workplace contaminants (such as lead), or gets food poisoning from food supplied by the employer, the case is work-related.
5. The injury or illness is solely the result of an employee doing personal tasks (unrelated to their employment) at the establishment outside of the employee's assigned working hours.
6. The injury or illness is solely the result of personal grooming, self-medication for a non-work-related condition, or is intentionally self-inflicted.
7. The injury or illness is caused by a motor vehicle accident and occurs on a company parking lot of company access road while the employee is commuting to or from work.
8. The illness is the common cold or flu (Note: contagious diseases such as tuberculosis, brucellosis, hepatitis A, or plague are work-related if the employee is infected at work).
9. The illness is a mental illness. Mental illness is not work-related unless the employee voluntarily provides the employer with an opinion from a physician or other licensed psychologist, psychiatric nurse practitioner, etc.) stating that the employee has a work-related mental illness.

THERE ARE NO OTHER EXCEPTIONS.
THE ENTIRE EXCEPTION MUST APPLY.
