

Brandon Radach
Managing Director
John Hancock

Brandon Radach is Managing Director for John Hancock's Investment Only Division covering the Midwest. Brandon's focus is working with retirement plan advisors providing them with unique positioning and prospecting ideas. Along with that, he enjoys discussing the finals meeting environment and key points on winning more business. This includes follow-up, personal positioning and question asking.

Brandon has been a registered representative of John Hancock Investments since 2003 where he began working with the retirement plan division before moving to investments and the DCIO market. Recently, he obtained the Certified Investment Management Analyst[®] (CIMA[®]) designation.

Originally from Iowa, Brandon moved to Chicago in 1997 after graduating from Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa. He is married to Gretchen and they have an 11-year-old named Max Frederick and a 9-year-old named Roman. All four are Chicago Bears and Iowa Hawkeye fans.